Customer Reviews

I love this book because I love insides sales teams. I consider them the actual backbone of any company. These people are the face of the company, the front lines. Sorry outsides sales professionals I think that these people are in the end more important to the success of the company than you guys are. In many companies these are the guys who get things moving, these are the people who do the prospecting and lead generation, the cold-calling and the closing, these are the ones who get things done. These are the people who get out there and create something out of nothing. These people are the ones who develop the business and find the customers and then most of the time they are the ones who are in charge of the care and feeding of those customers. Do I make myself clear? I love inside sales people. And this fine book by Ms. Feignon gives me everything I need to help me work and manage my inside sales team to success. Let's jump right into this "Seeing the potential for brilliance in your people is where good coaching starts" • Yes it does. Chapter 4 is all about prospecting. We all know how much fun that can be. The only thing more challenging than prospecting is getting your people excited about prospecting. Chapter 4 has one of the clearest and well-defined descriptions of what prospecting is. What it involves and the right way to do it to be successful. From lead generation to cold calls to the day my day progress planning this book provides all that you need to take your team through a strategic lead generation system. If you are too cheap to buy the book then find it in your bookstore and read Chapter 4 you owe it to yourself. The book ends with to handle those toughest of jobs dealing with low performers.
