Customer Reviews

We used this book with my non-reading daughter and though she has only learned a few of the songs so far, she really is enjoying it. The pictures are cute and colorful and the characters hold her attention well. My daughter started doing these when she was five and she especially liked the simple pictures. Our older daughter is using this to teach her and she has found that the lessons flow nicely. The one thing we wish is that there were more traditional Christian songs rather than mostly the non-religious Christmas songs.

My daughter started playing piano this year and loves this book. We purchased it about a month before Christmas, and she immediately took to it. The big advantage, IMHO, is that these songs were already familiar to my daughter, so her interest level in these songs (as opposed to the standard instruction book) was much higher.

This book is very short (10 songs), only four of which are something most children will have actually heard of. (The others are a mix of "traditional Christmas carols you barely hear nowadays" and "stuff we made up because they told us we had to have ten songs.")

This book of Christmas favorites is right in line with the level of the other My First Piano books for children. This was used by my first grader. He liked the songs around Christmas, but he played them even more at other times during the year because they are familiar. If you have the other piano books, this fits in well. It is also a great stand alone for Christmas songs.

We purchased books in this series for my 10 year old daughter and while they are well written, she lost interest. The ones with the CD's are better since she can play them even when dad isn't around to help. I wish they had DVDs to be the "music instructor".

I love My First Piano Adventure books. This one has nice big notes and a good variety of music. Infant holy, infant Lowly is my favorite in this one. I wish it came with a CD though.

This book is great for beginners, but contains many songs that I had never heard of. I was hoping for more familiar songs for my 5 year old to get excited about.

It was good to have some known Christmas songs to learn. We had a good time with it in December.
